InfoGuard strengthens its partnership with Netrics

InfoGuard, leading Swiss expert in cyber security and cyber defence, strengthens its partnership with the renowned digitalisation specialist Netrics. An approach that has already worked well in various customer projects now also takes on a strategic dimension and the long-standing successful cooperation between the two companies is expanded further.

In the face of the increasing threat situation in the area of cybercrime, Netrics is expanding its range of services to include comprehensive cyber security services for its customers. InfoGuard's expertise seamlessly complements Netrics' existing services and offers clients a comprehensive security concept.

Netrics' Chief Information Security Officer, Philipp Mangold, explained: "Netrics provides services to many well-known industrial and service clients for whom the threat situation in the area of cybercrime has changed massively in recent months. A holistic approach is needed to best protect our clients. The increased cooperation with our long-standing partner InfoGuard means we can meet this demand and offer our customers the highest level of security."

Stefan Thomann, Chief Sales Officer at InfoGuard, added: "Direct communication channels, mutual understanding of services and a high level of competence on both sides have meant that we have already been successfully working with Netrics in various customer projects for a long time. The strategic manifestation of this partnership will enable Netrics' existing customers to meet their security needs even more effectively by obtaining comprehensive cyber defence services from a single source – alongside ICT and cloud services."

InfoGuard and Netrics are leading companies in the support of well-known national and international corporate clients. While Netrics offers its customers comprehensive ICT operations with hybrid clouds and modern digital workplaces, InfoGuard focuses exclusively on providing cyber defence services. A central plank of the intensified partnership is the operation of the company's own 24/7 Cyber Defence Center, a service enhancement that enables Netrics' customers to significantly bolster their security.

InfoGuard and Netrics are confident that this extended partnership will offer their customers significant added value. Together, they will pool their expertise and resources to respond to the increasing demands in the field of cyber security and continuously optimise their customers' security solutions.
